NEW Facebook Page!

New Mexico State Committee for the National Museum of Women in the Arts

6 likes · 6 followers

Announcing a new NM Women in the Arts Facebook page! We are an all volunteer organization and behind the scenes volunteers are working hard as we grow and change. One project has been to upgrade our Facebook account. Due to changing technology we created a brand new page where we will post regularly about fascinating offerings from the National Museum of Women in the Arts, all the amazing things our member artists are doing, introducing our volunteers, and much more. Please click on the link and follow us on our new page! We hope to see you there!

NOW at NMWA

Have you ever wondered what our connection is to the National Museum of Women in the Arts (NMWA) in Washington, D.C.? Well, you aren't alone! It is one of the most common questions we are asked.

When NMWA founder Wilhelmina Cole Holladay created the museum in 1981, she had a vision that it would be the first museum in the world solely dedicated to championing women through the arts. Once it was established, she wanted to expand its reach. Her idea? Regional committees - each committee would then both raise awareness of NMWA and of their regional women-identifying artists.

Today, there are 16 committees in the United States and 11 worldwide. Each committee uses the strengths of its region to bring awareness to NMWA and to regional artists. Meanwhile, NMWA plays a crucial role in connecting all the committees, clarifying their individual responsibilities, and sharing best practices among them. This support by NMWA elevates all the work being done for women-identifying artists around the world.

About the New Mexico State Committee: In 1997, a group of women in New Mexico took it upon themselves to start a new state committee here. Through the years, the New Mexico State Committee of NMWA has grown, evolved, and expanded through offering a wide variety of fascinating events and programs that not only highlight NMWA but also women-identifying artists in New Mexico. If you are not already a member, join us now by clicking the link below:

The Women to Watch program, held every three years by NMWA, allows each committee to nominate an artist for an international exhibition. While New Mexico has always participated in the past, the Board has decided that for the 2027 exhibition we will instead support and promote the event locally, but not submit an artist, due to the costs and time commitments involved.

Being a member of NMWA means you are supporting important female artists' exhibitions, education programs, outreach, publications, and their information-rich website. Plus members also enjoy special benefits, including invitations to exclusive events (many of which are digital, making them available around the world) and a subscription to the Women in the Arts magazine. A virtual membership is only $60. Please consider joining today to help the Museum grow into the future!

The Art of Guerrilla Warfare: 40 Years of Masked Feminist Activists

In a recent NMWA video, Assistant Curator Hannah Shambroom shares a behind-the-scenes look at "Guerrilla Girls: Making Trouble", an exhibition of the anonymous feminist artists' 40-year evolution. Known for their trademark gorilla masks and witty, fact-filled posters, they call out sexism, racism, and corruption in art, politics, and pop culture with humor and bold design. Their work shows that activism can be playful and powerful, sparking conversations about representation, diversity, and equity in the arts. Learn about their history, specific works, and curating the show. Join NMWA for access to future talks, including live Q&A, before their YouTube release.

Creating Memories with Beverly Todd

Beverly Todd's Raven Studio, set against the breathtaking New Mexico landscape, welcomed 20 visitors on August 30, 2025, with walls filled by her vibrant abstract canvases. Sharing her journey in Abstract Expressionism, she spoke of inspiration, techniques, and her dedication to building an educational art compound. The visit was both inspiring and playful, especially when Beverly invited participants to tap into childhood memories with a box of crayons—first creating from memory, then transforming emotions into abstract drawings—leaving artists and non-artists alike with fresh insight into the creative process. ### Edition ONE Gallery on Canyon Road A Home for Photography

Pilar Law is celebrating Edition ONE Gallery's 1st decade on Santa Fe's Canyon Road, the last three years in the beautiful atrium space at 729 Canyon. Photography is the focus of the gallery and has been a constant in Law's life. Her mother, Lisa Law, is a well-known photographer of the music scene, Woodstock, and New Mexico counter culture.

Law built a career working in the photo industry for online photo stock and print lab companies, supporting photographers nationwide. "I was part of the transition from analog to digital photography.

I got to work with wonderful photographers from around the country and to curate for publications like National Geographic."

She became friends with many photographers who were then interested in being part of a new gallery in Santa Fe.

"Edition One was a dream," said Law, "to elevate photography to the level of fine art painting." Photographer Mark Berndt helped her open the gallery, which now represents 50 artists, including many local photographers. "You don't have to be famous to be in the gallery," said Law, "just very good."

A member of NMWA for the past two years, she welcomes the organization's engagement with the community and its impact on New Mexico's art scene.

The Frequency of Light Paintings by Shan Ogdemli

"High Desert Sunset" Acrylic and diatomaceous earth on canvas, 66x40

"Desert Dawn" Acrylic and diatomaceous earth on canvas, 36x48

Everything in existence is frequency, including matter, sound, light and emotion. It is the frequency of light that I'm most concerned with, and it's emotional effects on the viewer. I try to capture light in all it's forms - from the visible that includes the entire spectrum of colors, to the the unseen, like the light people describe during a spiritual experience.

Focus: Mixed Media & Monotypes with Paula Roland

Paula_Roland_Mixed Media and Encaustic Monotype by Paula Roland

Live online course. Mixed media can enhance encaustic monotypes and help you create unique compositions. Apply inks or watercolors to unprinted areas; the wax will resist the liquid, creating batik-like effects. Dry media (graphite pencil, Stabilo pencil, and others) can add precise line work and details difficult to achieve with wax alone. You will learn strategies for resolving your prints without overworking them! Also, Paula will also show you how to incorporate oil stick or cold wax medium for dramatic contrasts and visual complexity.

Date: Wednesday, October 8, 2025

1 – 3 PM CST

Location: Catalyst Art Lab (on-line)
